

Colliers International | Omaha Announces New Ownership Partners

Omaha, NE, January 9, 2019 – The Omaha office of Colliers International announced today the successful transfer of ownership from its initial founder Jay Noddle, and partner John Waldbaum, to long-time executives Ed Fleming, Kyle Peterson, Mike Potthoff and Jeffrey Wyatt.

With the change in ownership, Noddle stepped down as chairman and member of the board of directors. Waldbaum relinquished his board position, however remains an active broker at Colliers | Omaha. Additionally, Michael W. Miller maintains shares as an owner in the new partnership and also remains an active broker with the firm.

“The past six years of working with Jay, John and Michael to build Colliers | Omaha into a premier commercial real estate firm have been a tremendous and rewarding experience,” said Peterson, president and CEO. “Ed, Mike, Jeffrey, Michael and I are enthusiastically ready to take the firm to the next level so that it will continue to reflect the vibrant, ever-changing field of commercial real estate.”

“The ownership change retains the company’s privately held structure and day-to-day operations will not change” said Kyle Peterson. “Now with this exciting new generation of leadership, we look forward to continuing a legacy of premier commercial real estate services for years to come.”
